A Story of Wake Forest College

On February 2, 1834, about seventy-five ruddy-faced lads from thirteen to seventeen years of age met on what is now the Campus for the first opening of Wake Forest College. One of the number, John M. Crenshaw, whose father lived near by, signed his name in a trembling hand as the first student. A clean-shaven preacher with a kindly smile but a soldierly bearing welcomed them, and assigned them their quarters in the Room Six census that the former owner of the place had recently built for slaves, but never used. Nevertheless, they liked their quarters, and they also liked the other arrangements made for them, though at first they had their meals set out for them in a tent, and had to sit on slab benches in an old carriage house during the two daily chapel services. These fellows had never seen so much meat at each meal, and one day a bar-chap proposed that they should "Do our endeavor to eat up all the beef."

They had several instructors. Their President was Rev. Samuel Wait. He had come from New York a few years before and it was largely because of his vision and labors that the Baptists of North Carolina had been led to unite on this their first common enterprise and educational institution. He was already forty-five years old, but still a man of boyish energy.

At first Wake Forest was a manual labor institution; the boys were expected to work three hours a day on the farm. They liked this work and it was against their will that the manual labor was discontinued in 1838 and Wake Forest became a college with a larger faculty.

When Saturday afternoon came every student dressed up in his best and went out on the campus, bringing along whatever musical instrument he had, and with the encouragement and example of the President, sweet music was made under the old oak trees, and the soldiers, the military company, Fourth of July, the students, and the girls, not even at church, for girls had on that occasion proved disastrous to the scholarship of his fine young fellows) were on the program of our first President.

The religion of the boys was not forgotten. Nay, it was the main thing. The very first year there was a revival which swept over the assembled students like a mighty rushing wind, and in which forty students, most of them half the number of the entire, were powerfully converted. Here sixteen of these students and one of their preachers formed the Wake Forest Baptist Church, and Rev. Dr. Wait their minister. There arose from the students preachers like Rev. J. L. Pritchard, a heroic victim to yellow fever in Wilmington, and Yates, the missionary. Such were the days of Wait, which continued until 1844. In the meantime the Old Dormitory had been built in 1835, furnishing housing for all the students, recitation room, and chapel.

For the next ten years under the presidency first of Dr. William Hooper and then of Rev. J. B. White the college was struggling under the burden of debt incurred in building; but it was producing men worthily, such men as Wingate, Pritchard, Jack Mills, and Simmons.

A product of this period was Washington Manly Wingate, who in 1854 at the age of twenty-five came to the presidency of the College. He got an endowment of $10,000 for the College, did away with the preparatory department, and got the City of Winston in 1859 to build him a Wake Forest, and the city gave him some privileges in the land. He had a fine body of young men to deal with, mostly sons of rich planters. Students in those days were expected to have each six handkerchiefs of prodigious size and of the finest linen, costing nine to fifteen dollars, and a wardrobe to match. When they gathered on Saturdays for their social hour, they were delectable to behold—the spic-and-span shirts, those high collars, those fine neckcloths, and such a variety of styles.

By the hard work of the students the debts were paid off, and the students were turned out—Hutham, L. R. Mills, Royal, Pindexter, Emerson, Foote, Wooten, and Burroughs.

After the war the college opened again, this time with another class of students, and with a population that was amid great difficulties rapidly growing both in influence and in numbers. When Wingate died in February, 1865, Wake Forest was honored all over the state. For ten years before the university opened Wake Forest helped the boys who were the gray and their younger brothers to get an education. Such men as the Royals, father and son, Simmons, Mills, Taylor and Poteat were on the faculty. Dr. Wingate left the college, a recognized power in the religious world.

Following him came Pritchard, who doubled the number of students during his three years of administration, and then Dr. Charles E. Taylor, a man of family and of great religious experience.

In November, 1884, Dr. Charles E. Taylor was intrusted with the presidency. "Not a bad college possibly, but a good college" was his slogan. To him Wake Forest College owes the greater part of its present invested fund of over two million dollars. He added several departments of study, he raised the curriculum, and he introduced the elective system of studies. The Bostwick loan fund put a college education within the power of many men. Large amounts were given with a long strid and quiet, keeping dapper chaps from the coast worked side by side. These youths were transformed into gentlemen and scholars. The number of ministerial students grew accordingly in numbers and they have gone out over the state to make North Carolina a better Commonwealth. In 1905, after more than twenty years of service, Dr. Taylor died in his administrative duties. In 1893 he had established a School of Law, an epoch-making labor, and in 1902 a School of Medicine.

Sufficient it is to say of the present administration that it is carrying on worthily the work to which it has succeeded.

Foreword

IN this volume of THE HOWLER we have sought to portray the many interesting features of campus life that may be recalled with interest and pleasure in years to come, when the dust is brushed aside and the eye again looks upon these record pages.

The editors this year have varied from time-worn precedents, we have made changes in the old, and we have introduced new features which we feel will be for the betterment of THE HOWLER.

Without apology but with a desire that the readers will view with us in equal interest our college, and our forward steps of progress we herewith present THE HOWLER for 1923-24.

Snapshots Across the Pond

SEA-SICKNESS is normal and proper on the sea. Mothersil, gauze in the ears, and Christian Science are all equally ineffective against this inevitable reaction of the nervous system.

What would tourists in Europe do without Henry VIII, Louis XIV, and Frederick the Great? Their accumulations of magnificence and beauty are now the property of the world.

How can any one who has lived in England ever make up his mind to leave that lovely country?

Intensive farming—there isn't any except in France and Belgium and Germany.

At Moere is Big Bertha's sister, the fourteen-inch gun which dropped in one year 260 shells in Dunkirk 35 miles away. I jumped astride it and shouted ridicule down its spider-threaded throat. There is a lace shop in the apartments of its eight-foot wall emplacement.

Out from Ostend long rows of reinforced concrete "pill-boxes" still mark the British and German battle lines. But they hardly frown at one another, for the rank wheat reaches well up their sides; on top of one of them a great Holstein lies chewing her cud while another standing on the same odd resting-place surveys placidly the plain lately red but now grown green; and one of them lifts up a flaming torch of poppies. Mother Nature bandages up and heals all wounds, give her a little time.

The European situation is disheartening. Disorganization and revolt, the rancor of old hatreds, the suffering of poverty and disease, the spectre of another war—I wonder if the morning waits beyond the rim of such a night? A ship met us near midnight in fog and a rolling sea, and we picked up her wireless message: "Fair weather forty miles ahead!"

An elementary lesson learned in a visit to Europe is the simple one that there are others: other people no less gifted and attractive than one's own, other ways of doing things quite as efficient as one's own. A wholesome discipline to national pride.

Senior Class Poem

A. W. PENNINGTON '24

*They thought among the ancients, long ago,
That those great rhythms of the starry spheres
Begat a harmony, which human ears
Could never reach, nor mortal knowledge know.
And even yet, beside our eager eyes
Our souls can climb, communing with the stars.
When mortal sense lets down its hedging bars,
And we can hear sweet music in the skies.*

*And I have thought perhaps the pain, and joy,
And all the diverse ways of human kind
Are mingling in one consummate alloy
Of music, far too great for mortal mind.
For in the middle of the pulsing throng,
Where eyes through sympathy enlarge their ken,
Our souls may sense that blending choral song
That rises from the hearts and lives of men.*

Senior Class History

THE challenge for future leaders of our country met with a hearty response, when in September, 1920, the flower of young manhood migrated from the mountains and swamps of North Carolina and other states to Wake Forest College to drink from her fountain of knowledge. The mettle of this audacious aggregation has been beyond reproach during their sojourn around this intellectual spot. Not every young man usurps such an opportunity for preparation for life's service as did these fortunate lads.

Emerging into a new environment differing from the preceding years of high school, we soon set sail on a new and adventurous sea, leaving in oblivion the glories and cherished reminiscences, which enshrouded our happy high school days. At many times during our first year's voyage, the tempest threatened our frail bark, when our older brothers kept us in constant tremor and unrest, lest one hair should fall from our heads without their knowledge. Some of our number, however, fell victims to the hilarious entertainers, and surrendered their golden locks to decorate some Soph's memory book. Our fears subsided long enough to be supplanted by the courage and audacity which characterized our class athletes and proclaimed them, not only defenders, but champions of the three major college sports. The defeats and successes of a memorable year were written upon the margin of our thoughts and tablets of our memories, as we flung from around us the "green cloak" and smiled upon the verdant past.

The second year found us worshiping at the shrine of adventure and hilarity. Chafing under the past year's submission, each gave vent to his more disparate impulses in taking revenge upon the timid "Freshies" who fled from the many high schools of the state. The dreams of popularity of the first year men vanished after their first night's entertainment by the "Sophs." A greater confidence and spirit of adventure permeated our ranks during this the second year as we assumed the guardianship of our younger brothers, but they were very skeptical and unappreciative of our motives. But we had to keep pace with time which brought us to the close of another successful year which ended all too soon.

In a studious attitude of quiescence we were ushered into our third year's pilgrimage, but now we were able to discern the ring of silver and gold from all things else metallic. During this year some of the deplored traditions of the past were eradicated and the successful introduction of Student Government rule supplanted the unsatisfactory reign of chaos which to some extent had characterized the preceding years. We are glad to claim a goodly number of the men whose influences and efforts were responsible for the appreciable change. Thus began the days of joy and peace, work and play, for each day by studious efforts we added bricks to the structure of our future success and good fortunes. In the spring of 1923 one of our number crowned himself with laurels and brought honor to his class and college by being declared the best orator in the state when he won the Peace Oratorical medal. Neither are our great achievements in the field of society work told by this one event, for our societies contributed two or more of the South's greatest debaters, sweeping their opponents from their feet and swaying multitudes by their arguments and eloquence. This was attested when our representatives were declared winners in the debate with William Jewell College at the Southern Baptist Convention.

At last we have come to the greatest year of our sojourn, and as brave and reverent Seniors we are conscious of an enviable record. But before elaborating further it is expedient to review a few facts.

In the two literary societies of the College our class shared in its quota of representatives. For four years during heated discussions the society walls vibrated with great intensity by the torrents of oratory which issued from the silvery-tongued orators as they drove the white horse of elocution across the beautiful fields of oratory. Neither could these walls hold the immense volume; therefore not only the state, but the Southland flung upon her gates and gave room for free expansion and full expression. The various college publications which rank among the best have offered untold opportunities for intellectual expression and development. Our class is proud of her writers and our country will have been proud of them when their history is written. In the realm of athletics the words "glory" and "praise" cannot suffice, for we cherish beyond expression the record made by those whom we have placed upon the altar of college athletics. They have shared in defending and augmenting the integrity of our college, and have won for her many honors. Men from the class of '24 donned the uniform of Old Gold and Black when various teams fell victims of defeat before us. Davidson was defeated at Charlotte, Trinity at Winston-Salem, N. C. State at Raleigh, during the fall of 1923 for football honors, and men from the class of '24 were among those who starred. Three of the leading pitchers of the state hail from the class of '24.

We are now approaching the end of our prelude with the goal in view, and soon our action upon the stage of life will begin, but each is ready and eager to take his fling into life in order to explore and unravel futurity's riddle. The transition from preparation to service will doubtless mean a transfiguration and transformation in the lives of many of us for we shall always endeavor to exemplify the faithful and sacred teachings of our dear Alma Mater in transmuting darkness into light and finding a star among the shadows. Sweet memories floating out of vanished days will bring treasures of thought to enrich our lives. In bidding adieu to our college days we reach with eager hands to greet the future, remembering with tenderness and affection the beloved faculty of Wake Forest College, and we shall strive to magnify and exemplify their virtues in our lives. We leave a memorial to our Alma Mater as a symbol of our eternal loyalty, with gratitude to Him our Creator for bringing us thus far and asking His eternal guidance and protection henceforth.

Senior Class Prophecy

ON one afternoon when the days had lengthened and the warm sunshine had enticed me from the studies out in the balmy air, a hunter came hurrying through the woods with his countenance beaming like that of Leuwenhoek when he first beheld bacteria. I saw he was eager to reveal something, so I soon was in a conversation with him. After I had asked him a few questions, he told me of a remarkable place he had found in the woods where it seemed to be raining all the time although not a sign of a cloud was to be seen in the sky. I asked him to pilot me to the place, but he refused, pretending that he was in a hurry; but he pointed out the way clearly so that I had no difficulty in finding the place. After I had gone for a half mile I came to a dense thicket of bushes ten or twelve feet high, and strangely enough these bushes were as wet as if a shower of rain had just fallen. Amazed at this phenomenon I proceeded to investigate if possible this mystery. Parting shrubbery from right to left I made my way into the middle of the cluster of bushes, where I found an open space. At my feet were two rocks, and between them there was a small opening. Out of this opening came a sweet savor. Wondering at this I was about to turn and flee, when suddenly the ground gave way and I fell ten feet into a heap of sand. I was not hurt but greatly shocked. Quickly I arose and I looked about. I was in a rocky chamber which seemed to be about ten feet square, as best I could discern from the light that came through the crevices in the rocks. I struck a match and looked about more carefully, and in one corner was a small opening about the size of a door, beyond which was darkness. I was wondering whether to explore this or not, when suddenly I saw an inscription written on the stone:

This is the home, and one eternal gate
Thru which must pass the seeking race of man
When he would learn the blind, mysterious fate
Ordained for him since myriad worlds began.
Let him place here his worthy gifts and wait.

Could it be possible that I was in the presence of an oracle? What gift had I, and what was a worthy gift? I had only two-hits in my pocket, and an Ingersoll watch; that was all except my most valued Senior Class Ring. Shall this go? If so, let it be, the opportunity must not slip. I placed it on the shelf of the rock, and went back to the middle of the sand bar and sat down. Fumes seemed to surround me which were not at all unpleasant. A shower of rain fell. This was followed by a grinding of the rocks in which the door led; the cave seemed to be in motion. There was a pale light which illuminated the cave, and before my eyes an immense circular rock began to rotate. What was more astonishing than all was the appearance of the ring that I had placed upon the crevice and there in diamond letters I read:

HOWLER

O. D. Anderson, President of the Anderson, Greaves, Hawkins Stock Company, L. E. Andrews and M. G. Stamey, after years of consistent work, will learn the art of slinging royal bull and will ever after practice their profession. C. P. Brooks and Guy Daves will be head of the department of science at Furman University. E. H. Moore was appointed editor of New York Times, 1934. J. C. Hillburn and W. J. Wyatt have just completed their masterpiece, "This world is one blooming thing after another." R. E. Earp was appointed head of the department of Zoology at Harvard University by the board of trustees at their regular session May 15, 1935.

Drs. J. R. White, R. R. Weathers, R. J. Alford and ^{others} after years research perfected the growing of hemolytic streptococci in their throat without harm and are furnishing the state board of health with immune serum. Dr. R. B. Wilson, head of the department of Pathology, resigned, 1940, in order to devote his time to the discovery of cause of curly hair.

I turned to look at the revolving ring again. In an airy operating room I saw R. K. Charles and J. L. Young engaged in a difficult operation grafting a brain. Drs. J. C. Elliott and G. L. Whicker claim to have isolated a germ that is the cause of baldness. Dr. D. T. Bridges will be Chief surgeon of the hospital at Lattimore, his associates are Drs. J. R. Sanders, E. White, Mike Lee and H. O. Pearson.

On a rostrum of a great auditorium of Chicago, before a large number of delegates to the National Democratic Convention stands the orator of the day, C. E. Bailey. The stream of his sesquipedalian utterances is drowned by the outpour of applause, but it is possible to distinguish the name of P. J. Caudell in the juxtaposition with presidential nominee. Hon. D. L. Hiatt, considered the ablest lawyer of the state, who was appointed federal judge, was chosen to direct the campaign of C. C. Lamm, candidate for Senator. Senator Simmons of this state having signified his intention of retiring at the end of his term in 1940. Attorney H. W. Hasty, a shrewd politician located at Charlotte, went to the eastern part of the state to speak in behalf of Lamm; Hon. D. B. Lancaster, a prominent member of the State Senate, toured the western part of the state for Lamm; while himself confined his labors mainly to central Carolina, the stronghold of his opponent B. S. Beech.

Now let us turn to the men active in the workings of the Southern Baptist Convention held at Asheville, N. C., in 1935. At the head of the Convention, serving his third consecutive term, was Rev. Coy Muckle of Raleigh, N. C. J. R. Cantrell acted as clerk, and Revs. C. M. Townsend, of Fair Bluff, N. C., S. C. Stephens, of Wake Forest, N. C., served as vice-presidents. Rev. H. T. Wright of Arrington, Va., preached the introductory sermon, and W. D. Moore the farewell sermon of the Convention.

In a report made by Rev. S. N. Lamm, Chairman of Foreign Mission Board, glowing tributes were made to the memory of D. S. Dempsey and J. H. Ivey, both of whom had met untimely deaths while on a missionary tour in the African jungles. Dempsey unfortunately caught a poison bug in his mouth and choked to death before he could secure medical aid. Rev. Mr. Ivey died from a scorched brain, he having refused to wear any form of head gear. . . . Special mention was given in the report of the work being done by Revs. Messrs. L. T. Wood and M. C. Howard. W. H. Howard reached the goal of his ambition when June 15, 1935, he was chosen President of the Hickory Cane Co., Hickory, N. C. The revolutions of the great ring ceased. A rough hand was placed upon my shoulder and a gruff voice called, "You will go with me, sir, and tell the Court what you know about this Blind Tiger."

The hunter I met proved to be a U. S. revenue officer, and he was using me without my knowledge to aid him in detecting the Blind Tiger Gang, that had so successfully carried on their unlawful business, concealing their den by shrouding it in mysteries from all except those "WHO KNEW THE ROPES." Intoxicated by the fumes of distilling liquors, I had seen this preposterous vision of my Classmates. And I was glad of such Prophecy.

The Senior Vote

EVERY group of persons to become an organization must have a corp of officers which, working together, enable the organization to work as a unit. As a rule, there are members who seem to be peculiarly fitted to discharge duties of special offices and especially is this so of the Senior class of '24.

On the night of October 8, the class was called to order by Pres. J. R. White for the sole purpose of electing these officers. Nominations were no sooner in order than a dozen stood simultaneously to make nominations. It was quite evident that electioneering had been running riot and the hearts of the candidates were afame with the fire and anticipation of victory.

First, nominations for the best looking man of the class were entertained and many names were brought forward, but the hearts of all the other candidates sank into oblivion when the name of that famous baseball star from Yadkin, Mr. "Babe Ruth" Casstevens was placed before the house.

In contrast to this, nominations for the ugliest man of the class were entertained and after several ballotings (for the nominations were many), Mr. "Sleepy" Hall was declared elected.

Nominations then came like machine gun fire and after the smoke of battle cleared away "Dicky" Williams found himself elected the biggest parasite, C. C. Lamb, the most studios and "Mike" Lee the biggest liar.

Of course every class boasts of a Sheik. Without the slightest opposition Conrad Watkins found himself tagged, for he was "It." He deserved it too.

Jack Carlyle has never entered politics before this year, but there is no need for him to be discouraged because he was elected "Hay Seed" of the class.

There were many in the class who, to take their professor's word for it, have an excellent line, but none to compare to that of M. G. Stamey, so to keep the best on top, he was elected "Biggest Bull Shooter" of the class.

Here we pause with sad heart. The who's class is sorrowful, and with regret makes public the fact that one of its beloved members, yes, one, one of its ministerial members, has fallen victim to the drink habit. Yes, Jim Ivey is the one, and it is such a pity too, for Jim has beautiful hair.

Of course it is recognized by all who know him, that Estus White is the most effeminate man of the class, and when the coy glances, cunning eyes and many heart breaking flirtations of "Slats" Bridges were considered, he was unanimously elected "The Flapper of the Class."

HOWLER

"Patty" Wyatt is the best athlete our class affords and Arch J. Flannagan has more dignity than a judge, but he has failed to demonstrate any of it since being a member of the class. Yes, he is the most dignified.

Before any one could put on the brakes of the election machine, L. T. Wood was elected "Cake Eater." B. E. Smith "The Cutest Gentleman" and W. L. McSwain the "Biggest Sport."

As the smoke grew dense the minds of the deep thinkers began clearing up. For two weeks they had been electioneering for Frank Powers. Frank had been heard to declare several times that this office was the only one he really craved. Of course some one bit and asked "what office?" to which Frank promptly replied. "The office of Cedar Bird." Well, he got it.

W. A. Brewton was never known to have the slightest inclination toward the members of the female species, a distinguishing peculiarity of his, so in keeping with his reputation, he was declared "The Woman Hater of the Class."

Our class as a whole is exceptionally religiously inclined but there are several outstanding characters in this respect, especially that of "Squire" Falls. Notwithstanding this one great virtue and in spite of the admonitions and entreaties of the class "Sky" Berry still persists in dispensing "Mountain Dew."

When it comes to riding "Side Door Pullmans" and "Cattle Coaches," R. E. Earp has no equal. He actually "Hobbed" to Youngsville one night to attend a side show.

Opinions seemed to differ as to the most pessimistic member. W. F. Peacock and "Gloomy" Sanders tied for this office. To prevent any ill will between these two gentlemen it was left to the Gods of Chance to decide, and by the flip of a coin "Gloomy" was elected.

Sometimes we all feel downhearted and blue and it is that wholesome smile of Julian Elliot, the "Most Optimistic" of the class, that causes our sorrows to vanish as the storm clouds before the sun.

Of course the "Most Truthful" member of the class had to come from among our lawyers ?????? and so to have this group best represented. C. E. Bailey was declared the most fitting.

Did any one ever hear "Red" White sing? If not, he thankful. His attempts resemble a cross between the bray of a homesick jackass and the heartbroken sigh of a lovesick kitten. "Red" is our musician.

Of course there was a place which only a "tightwad" could fit and it was the unanimous opinion that "Keen Eye" Mackie was the most "Fitting" man in the class.

Every class must have a mascot and after much consideration the baby of the class was chosen. It makes our hearts proud when we think of rosy dimpled cheeks, laughing blue eyes and cunning smile of our mascot, "Sky" Wright. He only weighs 118 with a stature of 5' 3".

With this corps of officers we feel sure that the class of '24 will be able to solve any problems that may arise and also demand some recognition in the near future.

STATE OF NORTH CAROLINA,
COUNTY OF WAKE.

WE, the Class of 1924, Wake Forest College, County of Wake, State of North Carolina, being in good bodily health, and of sound and disposing mind and memory, calling to mind the frailty and uncertainty of college careers, realizing that we must soon close our eyes on quiz pads and campus scenes, and drop from our cold grasp the things of this mundane orb for which we have toiled and in all probabilities sinned, do hereby make and declare this to be our last will and testament; revoking and making null and void all other wills and testaments, by us heretofore made, whether or not having been reported to His Highness, the Dean.

And, first, we do direct that our funeral services be conducted by our friends and well-wishers, the Faculty, only enjoining that the funeral be carried on with all the dignity and pomp our situation in the college scale has merited.

And, our college assets and all belongings thereto, whether tangible or intangible, which at the time of our departure we declare ourselves sole owners of, do devise, bequeath and dispose thereof in the manner following, to wit:

Imprimis: To the inexpressible joy of our beloved parents, we relieve them of the burden of paying our "stuffed" accounts which have heretofore greeted them at the end of each collegiate month, and we assure them that the promptness with which they have been met, without a murmur, has been duly appreciated by us.

Item: We declare it to be our desire that our Class Historian make a lasting record of our manifold, multifarious achievements during the past four (4) years and that a copy of the same be donated to the College Library, and that a copy be published in THE HOWLER that those who come after us may know of our greatness.

Item: To the Junior Class we give, devise and bequeath the proverbial Senior Dignity and Privileges, a legacy which has been transmitted from Senior Class to Junior Class. "From the time whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary."

Item: We bequeath to the Sophomore Class all the good counsel and advice we have been able to gather from various sources during the past four (4) years, and refer them in our absence, for future advice on all subjects, to Dr. Tom Jeffries.

Item: Whereas, the Freshman Class has become so prominent in all affairs pertaining to the college, and whereas, they have obtained a position more elevated than that of the Upper Classes in rights and privileges, we declare it to be our desire, that henceforth it be a precedent at Wake Forest College, that the Freshman Class cooperate with and be a chief advisory council to the Faculty in the management of all their affairs.

Lastly: We do nominate and appoint the President, Dean and Bursar, along with the Registrar, to be the executors of this, our last Will and Testament.

In testimony whereof, we, the Class of 1924, have to this our Last Will and Testament, so intituled on two (2) sheets of parchment subscribed our names and affixed our seal, this Thirteenth day of June, Anno Domini, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four.

Signed: THE CLASS OF 1924 (SEAL)

Junior Class Poem

C. D. WARD '23

*Meeting and parting, ever and aye,
 Thot, the rhythm; this, the song;
 Day follows night, and night the day,
 Turn in turn as they dance along.
 The tide floods high and then ebbs low.
 The moon shines full and dies away.
 The sun leaps up and falls below.
 And chill December follows May.
 All things are born and everything dies,
 Men and flowers return to clay;
 Kingdoms vanish as they rise,
 Worlds are forged and cast away.*

*But new worlds form from the old 'ere long,
 And fallen kingdoms rise again,
 Men and flowers burst burst forth in song,
 And all that dies is born again,
 The kind May rights December's wrong.
 And the sun leaps high after falling below,
 The moon rebounds from its captive
 thong,
 And the tide floods up after ebbing low.
 Turn in turn as they dance along,
 Day after night and then the day;
 This the rhythm; that, the song,
 Parting and meeting, ever and aye.*

History of Junior Class

ON the fifth and sixth of September, 1921, the class of '25 made its first appearance at Wake Forest College, coming from every nook and corner of North Carolina and other neighboring states. The new environment into which we came produced in us a new feeling. We were immediately introduced to the first degree of college life by our superiors in college experiences. This degree we shall never forget. During these days many changes came into our lives; old customs and habits were discarded, and new ones put into practice. Early in the fall session the president of the senior class called a meeting of the freshman class, for the purpose of organization. L. A. Peacock was chosen president. Under his leadership we moved along the path of freshman life, every now and then being admonished to keep our places. During the latter part of the last term, many aspirants to lead the class the next year cast their hats in the ring for president. D. H. Harris was elected president; R. B. Griffin, vice-president; and B. C. Boone, secretary. The spirit of hazing which had brought so much grief to the loyal supporters of Wake Forest College became disgusting to the student body, and especially to the freshman class.

When we arrived the second year, the class without a single exception determined to do its part to rid Wake Forest College of the nefarious custom of hazing. With this resolution and a love for our Alma Mater that overrules all personal feelings we carried out our resolution to a man. A new morale now pervades the student body and the change for a greater and better Wake Forest will be as lasting as time.

In all phases of college life our class has made creditable records; on the athletic field we have won our honors; on the staff of student publications we have shown our ability as writers; on the debating teams we have measured up to every expectation; and in religious organizations our class has always been found with those in the responsible places as leaders.

This year our class is practically one hundred strong. The class is continuing its forward journey, led by our efficient president, R. H. Reitzel. We see life through many lenses. And in these remaining days that we are to sit at the feet of our efficient professors, we shall do our best to equip ourselves to be of the greatest service to our follow-men, and ever and anon keep the beacon light of Wake Forest burning bright.

*There's a long, long road behind us,
For our Freshman year is done,
And we come in all victorious
For the Sophomore spoils we've won.*

*In the days gone by, we came here,
We were Freshmen—green as grass,
But those days are gone forever,
So behold the Sophomore class.*

*There has been no class ever like it.
You may puzzle, think, and fix;
But there's magic in its meaning,
In the class of twenty-six.*

*We've two more years ahead of us,
First Juniors, then Seniors, you'll see,
But now we'll tell the whole wide world,
We're the Sophomores of twenty-three.*

*So let's have a cheer for our onward way,
In our work whatever it may be,
Never down, never out, stick in to the last.
We're the Sophomores of twenty-three.*

Sophomore Class History

ON September 4, 1922, the class of '26 awoke to behold the dawn of a new day in the career of each member, as Aurora drew her purple curtain on the ancient brow of our chosen Alma Mater. We were fortunate in being the first class to enter under the new regime of Student Government. The ancient and bloody hatchet of the Sophs had been buried beneath a canopy of numerous little Black Caps, bearing an inscription in glittering gold, telling to all mankind that we were "fresh meat" from the many human stock pens of the Old North and neighboring states.

The first few days were fearful ones for we knew not what new mystery would loom before us e'er another sun had set. But October 15, found us settled in our new abodes and at the call of John Thomas, President of the Student Body, we assembled in the chapel and got our first taste of collegiate politics. Numerous candidates were heralded before us amid the oratory of ex-High School forensic mentors. And after listening to seemingly long hours of semi-Senatorial debate we chose as our leader Joe Piner of Swansboro, N. C., Lamar Caudle of Wadesboro, vice-president, and Sankey Blanton of Wake Forest secretary. So with these men at the helm of our ship we started on our Freshman journey confident that in due season we would reach the desired haven of every Freshman, i.e. to wear the toga of full fledged upperclassmen.

All went well until the first of May, 1923, when election day came around and we were called upon to choose officials for the Sophomores to be. Again speechmaking was the order of the day, and competition was keen. Ballots were cast and after the tabulation was complete, we found that the following men had been chosen to lead us through what then seemed to us would be the happiest of all college years; president, Lamar Caudle; vice-president, Carroll Holmes, and secretary, H. L. Snuggs.

So we returned at the beginning of session '23-'24 all set to make the most enviable record yet left in the archives of Old Gold and Black. As I write this year is young, but with the spirit that dominates our class we feel safe in predicting that our desired goal will be reached, and when the curtain shall finally fall on this the ninetieth session of Wake Forest College, it can be truthfully said that not a single member of our class has conducted himself so as to mar the spotless record of the class of '26.

First Impressions

Gosh what a hot time we Rats met
When we hiked into dear old Wake!
Our first night here we shall never forget—
No, I surely don't exaggerate.

Now we were greener than the greenest greens,
And fresher than pre-laid eggs,
But oh, the curses that filled our beans
When the "Sophs" pulled us out by the legs.

Down through the streets we marched that night
With our shirt-tails out of their places.
We had a darn good time all mixed with fright
And showed up some "Sparkplug" paces.

This yarn, you see, is the same old tale
That is wafted here year after year;
But the joys and terrors of the lonesome rail
Are to Freshmen and Sophomores forever dear.

Freshman Class History

ON the twenty-fifth of September, nineteen hundred and twenty-three, the largest Freshman Class in the History of Wake Forest College assembled on "The Hill." It would have been interesting to any one to have watched this green bunch roaming aimlessly over the campus; but it was not long before they were initiated into the mysteries of Greek and Trigonometry. It was about two weeks after the opening of school before we could distinguish "who was who," because our Freshman caps were late in arriving.

Our class was called to meet for organization by the President of the Student Council on October 26, 1923. The following officers were elected: President—Walter Daniel; Vice-President—H. R. Greason; Secretary and Treasurer—S. R. Byerly; Poet—A. A. Moore; Historian—H. C. Lennon. After this we began to take our place in the life of the College; not only in numbers, now, but also in the College activities. In athletics the Freshmen have made a good showing. The class was represented on the Football, Basketball, Tennis, and Track Teams.

When the Christmas holidays came every one was eager to go home to relate to his loved ones his many wonderful adventures and experiences. The New Year brought us back to Wake Forest minus the freshness we had in September. This time we came confident and self-reliant and began work shoulder to shoulder with our fellow-students.

In February came our first examinations, which made us sit up and take notice, but after all we found that they were not so bad as we had expected. After the first examinations things moved along smoothly for the remainder of the year and we began now to look forward to becoming Sophomores.

Our history is indeed short. But it will not always be so. It is, as the fabled cocoon said to itself, in the process of making. There are those among us who have talent, ambition, determination, those who, as they are now winning honors among their fellow-students, will achieve far greater things upon the battlefield of life; whose names, emblazoned upon the pages of the world's history, will stand forth through all the time, imperishable memorials to the honor of Wake Forest and the glory of the Class of '27.

History of Ministerial Class

IN number, the ministerial class runs neck and neck with the law class. There are ninety men that have heard and answered the same voice that Andrew and Peter of old did hear and answer. The fishermen left their nets and followed the Master; likewise the men that go to make up our class left their former occupations to prepare themselves to enter greater fields of activity. From the class of each year a large number are taken from us, but the vacancy is overfilled the following year by a larger number of new men.

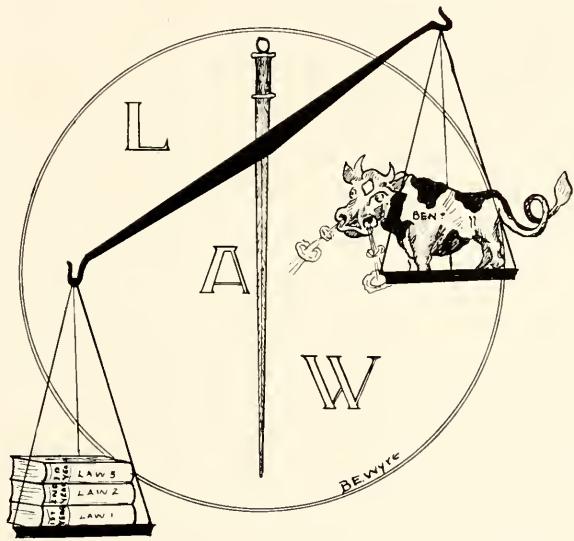

Various states are represented. North Carolina, of course, claims the greatest number. The other states are represented as follows: South Carolina, three; Virginia, three; Alabama, two; Maryland, one; New Jersey, one; South Dakota, one; and Arkansas, one.

Aside from the regular routine of class work of each individual member, the class meets once each week; one week a chapter in some book dealing with church life is taught by Dr. Cullom, next week a program is rendered by certain members of the class who have been under preparation for two weeks. The latter plan was formulated last year and has proved very successful.

There are several men with whom most of us have associated that we shall particularly bear in mind. Dr. Royall, though physically weak, is still mentally and spiritually alert. The sympathetic touch which many of us have felt is something to be desired. He is our fatherly interpreter. Dr. Cullom is our kind friend and adviser, leading us through many difficult problems with which we are brought face to face. Dr. Lynch, a distinguished scholar and student of the Bible, was added to the Bible department this year. He has won his way into the hearts of every member of the class.

Among our number are athletes, students, writers, speakers and musicians. In every phase of college activity our number mingles freely. It is our purpose to meet all of our college brothers on a common level and set aside all the misconceptions that may exist concerning our class.

Law Class History

HIS Father Time draws the curtains for the lapse of another year let me narrate the full and precise history which the Law Class of 1924 has so deservedly made for itself. If the writer had the eloquence of a genius, he would still be unequal to the pleasant task which confronts him.

The many accomplishments of the ninety-five members of this class are due to the daily routine of our beloved Law Faculty, Dr. N. Y. Gulley, Professors E. W. Timberlake, and R. B. White. And as these accomplishments and honors mature, the members of this class will be crowned with continuous success and prominence.

The Law Class of this year has been very fortunate in the election of a president who has been able and willing to perform all the duties of such a position—St. Clair Edward Bailey. The glowing record of success of the class is in a large measure due to his foresight and unfailing efforts in devotion to the tasks that have been heaped upon him.

Wake Forest's Law School was established a quarter of a century ago by Dr. N. Y. Gulley, who has treated it as an arboriculturist treats an acorn. It was planted, then by tender care, nourished by water, and sunshine, it grew to be a mighty oak that could withstand great winds and storms, and serve mankind. So is the founder of the Wake Forest Law School large, firm, and kind. Since the Law School was founded over one thousand lawyers have received their licenses to practice the profession in North Carolina; a record unsurpassed by any other Law School in the State.

The members of the law class do not confine their time solely to the study of law; but to other campus activities as well. In athletics the class has furnished its proportionate share. On the gridiron Armstrong, Lentz, Green and Greason have a leading part in raising Wake Forest College to second honors in the State. In basketball Greason is the outstanding star. The class contribution to the diamond consists of Johns, Jones, Arnette, Armstrong, Clark, Greason, Poole and Stamey. The last named is captain for '24, and a member of the All State Team of '23.

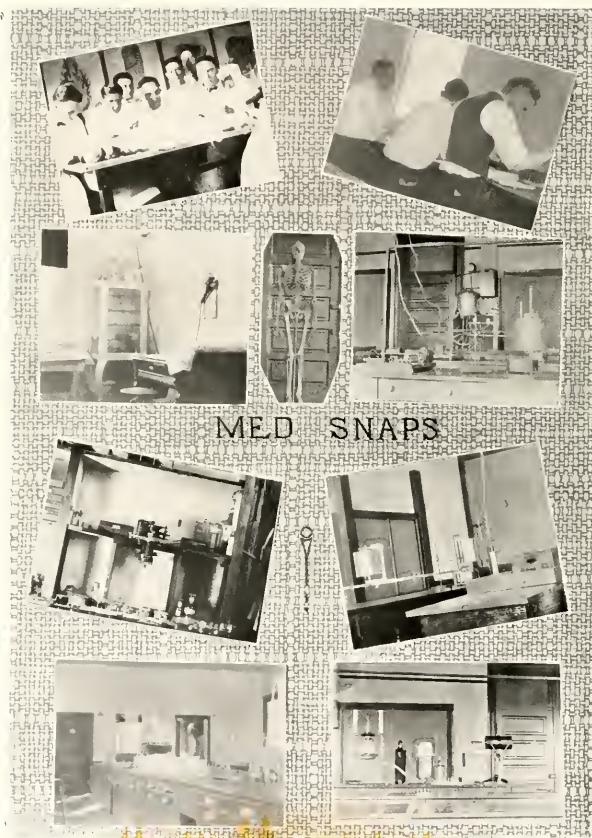

In other college activities the Law Class stands at the top. R. S. Averitt, B.A., '22 was one of the most forceful debaters in college while he was an undergraduate. As orators we mention B. T. Jones, Society Day Orator of 1923, J. L. Lavender, Commencement Day Orator, and M. G. Stamey, Anniversary Day Debater of 1924. Not only as a Society debater has Stamey won fame, but he has served on the Debate Council two years in succession; first as Secretary and then as Chairman, and has represented Wake Forest in Intercollegiate debates two years. This year he is Student President of the Athletic Council, and a member of the Student Government Council. J. B. Winecoff represents the Law Class in the Student Legislature as its Secretary, and S. S. Woodley was the member from the Law Class on the Student Council. In the field of literature and college publications Jerry Sawyer B.A., '23, is the outstanding star, ranking as editor of The Student. These men as leaders in our college life, have untiringly given their time, energy and ability for the benefit of the Student Body as a whole.

The Class of '24 has the credit of establishing the first Legal Fraternity, Pi Beta Nu, at Wake Forest College. And with the aim to promote legal ethics and culture in this college and the profession at large, great things are to be expected of it.

Many more honors could be enumerated, but the real history will begin as the members of the class enter upon the stage of life's affairs.

History of the Medical Class

THE MEDICAL CLASS OF '24 was organized on September 8, 1922, and began to make such history as is herein recorded.

After spending five weeks of unique toil on osteology, we boldly entered the dissecting room where we found the greatest amount of our work for the remaining months. In this field of adventure we worked on our cadavers with uninterrupted freedom, gaining a variety of experiences that will not soon be forgotten. Embryology, Histology, and Physiology offered quite a bit of entertainment for us, especially mentioning the laboratory work on Embryology. After the successful completion of our first examination, we acquired a little professional dignity and felt that we were considerably nearer our M. D. degrees than we had been.

The second year we resumed our work on the 26th of September. Without the loss of a single member and with the addition of one new member, we ambitiously started back to work. We were soon convinced that the second year held in store for us a broader field of study with an even longer schedule of class work than did the first year. Despite the limited amount of time we had for research work, there were quite a number of important discoveries and explanations of scientific facts made in both the first and second years. To mention only a few of these will be convincing evidence of this statement. J. L. Young set the whole class and part of the faculty in deep thought when he explained Socrates' works on the developing chick embryo. "Slats" Bridges claims that the cogs in the head are not real wheels. Casstevens discovered the "cedar-bird" oil. "Captain" Ellio has found that he "had 'em," while "Red" White contends that he recognized "a serious occasion."

Although the medical class is somewhat isolated from the rest of the College, it is nevertheless represented in every important phase of college life. It is well represented in basketball, and in other forms of college sports. Our class has furnished the president of the Senior class and other officers in this class. We supply the Senior representative to the Athletic Council.

Our days at Wake Forest are now about over, and we can only look back with pride on our achievements. From the very beginning our class has stood as a unit. We have worked in perfect harmony, fighting the same battles and overcoming the same obstacles, the most notable of which was the getting out of chapel in our Senior year.

As we go out to pursue our studies in other institutions, we feel a sincere regret in leaving our Alma Mater. The earnest wish from each member of our class is that the succeeding class may set as high a standard as we have. This we feel will be done, for the Junior Medical Class has expressed sterling character and genuine ability in its accomplishments.

Class History

IN the embryonic state of this organization it was called the Teachers' Class of Wake Forest College. Heretofore the interest of this club has been spasmodic, but under the leadership of Dr. D. B. Bryan it has attained a characteristic place which will hold it in superiority to any of the other organizations of its kind "on the hill."

This year it has secured Coach Garrity to train the members of the club in coaching all forms of Athletics. This will no doubt increase the demand for Wake Forest teachers to even a greater degree than at present. With this new phase added the organization trains and equips its members in a much needed field.

Members of the club must be in good standing not only in literary ability but in all other essentials which go to make up real men, before they are accepted for membership. Those who have noticed the activities of the club must confess that it has sent out men who have made their mark in the world as is evidenced in the Alumni Section of this issue of THE HOWLER. They are to be found in nearly every state east of the Rockies.

This organization meets once every two weeks. At these meetings lectures are delivered, and papers are read. The program is concluded with a good social period at which yarns are swapped over apples and cigars.

THE HOWLER

COACH GARRITY is a graduate of Princeton, having received the B.A. degree at the close of the 1922 session. The fall of 1922 found Coach Garrity as Assistant Coach at Missouri. During the fall he became head coach of Football and Baseball and made a remarkable record as coach of these sports.

Coach Garrity was offered the position as Director of Athletics at Wake Forest College in the spring of 1923 which he accepted. He took charge of Athletics at Wake Forest this past fall and turned out the most successful football team that has worn the Gold and Black in many a day. At the conclusion of the season Coach Garrity was named as Coach for the All State Mythical Eleven.

Wake Forest is to be congratulated on securing the services of the former Princeton All American Halfback.

Coach Utley is an old student of Wake Forest having been a star of his day. He returned to his Alma Mater last year and is now Director of the "Gym" work and is an able assistant to Coach Garrity on the Gridiron, Basketball Court, and Baseball Diamond. With these two men at the helm Wake Forest's Athletic prospects for the future look bright.

FILM HISTORY OF "DEMON DEACONS."

Football Summary

ON September 3, three weeks before the opening of school, there was gathered together on Gore Field a heterogeneous group of about forty-five prospective football players. Of this squad only five—Captain Pegano, Greason, Lentz, Armstrong, and Harris—were letter men, and, with the exception of about half a dozen others, none of them had ever played together before. The terrific hard work, the practices early in the morning and late in the afternoon, the many sacrifices made by these boys are well known.

However, a football machine can not be trained in only three weeks, and when the team journeyed over to Chapel Hill on September 29 the state champions licked us 22–0 in a hard fought game in which a well-perfected machine decisively conquered a fighting, but inexperienced eleven. This defeat served as a stinging incentive to greater things, and in the next two games with weaker teams the squad was being rounded into shape and teamwork was becoming very evident. Then came the first real triumph of the season when Davidson was beaten by a score which by no means shows the superiority of the victor. From then until the game on Thanksgiving Day the team increased in power and effectiveness that is little short of marvelous. Though they defeated us the Florida 'Gators' were handed a distinct surprise at Tampa; the Blue Devils from Trinity were whipped at Winston-Salem; a slight relapse was suffered at Elon; but on November 24 the team that represented the Old Gold and Black on Riddick Field in Raleigh was, according to the opinion of various sport writers of the state, "the best North Carolina eleven that has stepped out upon a white striped field in all North Carolina this year, without exception, and showed more power and more versatile ability than the champions of the state, Carolina, has even approached during the whole season."

This victory over N. C. State was the summit of merited success, and five days later—as an anticlimax—the Gamecocks of South Carolina administered a defeat to us which was as decisive as it was deserved. Thus ended the greatest and most successful football season that Wake Forest has enjoyed in the twentieth century. To Mr. Henry Garrity, all-American half from Princeton and head coach at the University of Missouri in 1922, goes practically the entire credit for the phenomenal season. He, ably assisted by Phil Utley, raised the Baptist football banner from the dust of defeat to the heights of unprecedented glory, and his name will live in the annals of athletic history at this institution as long as football is played in the state.

THE Demon Deacon Quintet coached by Garrity and piloted by Greason, the fast dependable forward, has gotten off to a good start for the 1924 season, having won ten out of the first fifteen games. They opened the season with practice games with Camp Bragg and the Durham Elks, winning three out of four.

The team then invaded Virginia, competing with some of the strongest teams in the state, and made an unusually good record winning six out of eight games.

Since coming home the team has met the three strongest teams in the state, winning one of the three games.

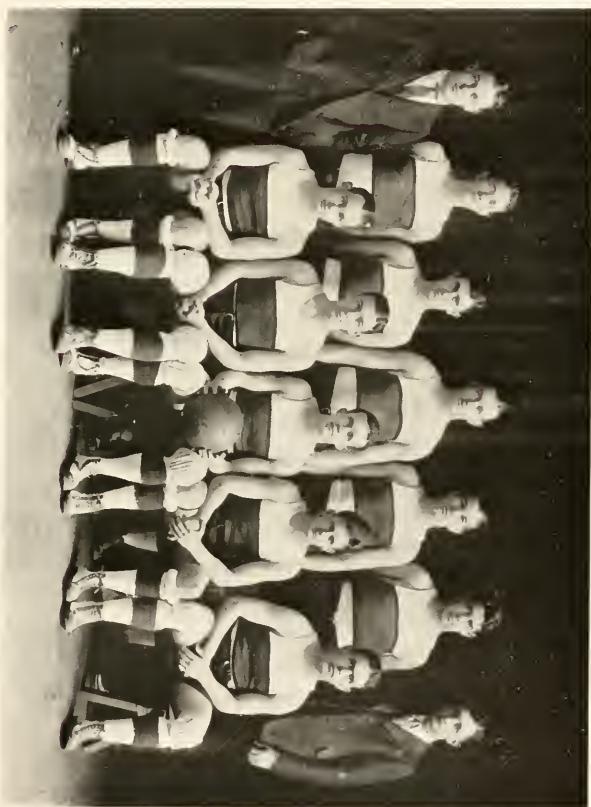

There are still eleven games on the schedule, and from the improvement made by the team it looks as if they will win the majority of the remaining games.

Coach Garrity has developed a strong machine, having shifted some of the players from their former positions, using big Emerson at center, who has greatly strengthened the team.

Captain Greason has played a good consistent game throughout the season with Modlin developing into a good running mate for him. Pegane has played his steady game at guard with Carlyle exhibiting good doorwork and flashing into the limelight with his brilliant one-hand shots. Emerson and Anderson have been alternating at center, both showing up well.

C. V. WILLIAMS, Manager.

MURRAY GREASON, known on the gridiron as "Greasy" Greason and on the basketball floor as "Lightning," carried out his old reputation at forward again this year, and has made an enviable reputation as the pilot of the 1924 Quintet.

Captain Greason is small but this is really an asset for he more than counteracts his size by his speed on the floor and his accuracy in goal shooting.

Class Team Activities

UNDER the plan of Director Garrity a series of class games was arranged in each of the three major sports between the class teams. A great deal of interest has been aroused and there is much speculation as to who will win the class cup.

Under the present system each major sport counts one-third and each game played a proportionate part.

At present the Seniors seem to have the advantage for they were the undisputed masters in the Gridiron and almost as successful on the Basketball Court, but the tale isn't told until after the baseball season is finished.

The class athletics are doing a good bit in developing men who will be good varsity material at a future date, and Director Garrity has not ignored its value.

Baseball Summary, 1923

Baseball Review, 1923

The team of 1923, though not a championship team, was far from making a bad record. On the other hand the showing made was good.

Of the twenty-two games arranged by Manager Crowder, only two were rained out. Wake Forest won eleven games, lost eight, and tied one, scoring a total of one hundred and one runs against their opponents eighty-five. The sensational game of the season was that with N. C. State on Easter Monday, when the two blood-thirsty nines battled for sixteen innings to a 6-6 tie. The team made a successful trip through Virginia, winning four out of the six games played.

Below is given the schedule with the scores of each game:

TRACK

Track Review 1923-24

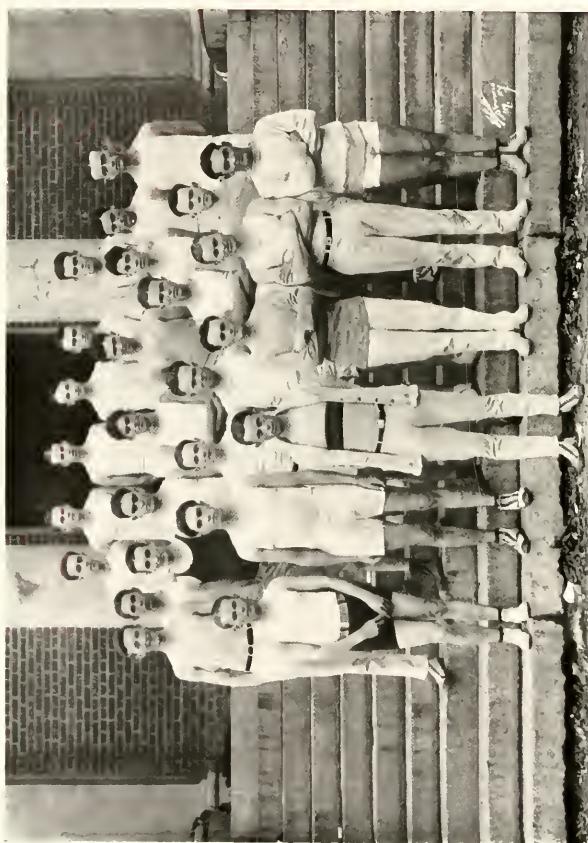

ALTHOUGH we have not had a Track Team for the past two years there is still some interest left, some latent material to be developed. We have men in the student body who if encouraged will make enviable records for themselves and for the college. Further, we have men here who are determined to bring this phase of athletics to the front.

It is our ambition to promote Track at Wake Forest College in such a spirit that the State of North Carolina will begin to grow out of its infancy in this undeveloped phase of athletics. We wish to help. We wish to add our bit to all the other colleges in the state that have a broad vision in the development of Track Athletics. Our aim is to be among the foremost in such an unselfish development.

We began our upward climb last fall by developing a Cross-Country Team, the first in the history of the college. Although outclassed by two other teams in the state our team made a good record for its first experience.

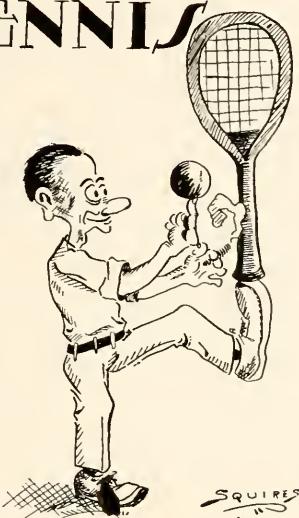

All this goes to show that we expect this year to be a good beginning toward better Track Athletics at Wake Forest. We believe it because we have good leaders in Coach Garrity, Graduate Manager Carroll, and almost all of the Student Body is anxious and willing to support worthy ideals that lead to a better Wake Forest.

Tennis Review and Preview

THE Tennis season began last fall with a three day trip. The best men had been chosen by a four-round tournament lasting through two weeks. Davidson, Guilford, and Trinity were played while on this trip. Owing to the late opening of college and, consequently, lack of practice, the team lost the encounters with Trinity and Davidson. The meet with Guilford was easily won. Wake Forest was weakened this year by the loss of four letter men of last year. Only one letter man was back for the fall games. The men who were on the team for the fall games were: Carl Townsend, Captain; Alex. Agelasto, D. W. Bland, Mack Arnette, and B. F. Slate.

There are better prospects for the Spring games. Jack Carlyle, a letter man of three years, will be with the team and there is ample time to practice. Trips are to be made to all the colleges of the state and a ten day trip into Virginia.

THE Alumni Section of the 1924 HOWLER is dedicated to the Educators who have been brought back in print and pictures and placed among the scenes and activities that they were once the center of.

The Editors of the Annual hope that their successors will find it fitting to continue this section in the future, and that this section will be the means of bringing our Alumni who have made their mark in life before the Students, and of rekindling their interest in Student Life on the Campus.

A Word From The Howler and Its Editors

WE wish to express our thanks to Dr. Charles Phillips for his splendid help and coöperation in securing for us campus and student life snap shots. As a result of his efforts THE HOWLER contains the most complete set of snaps that actually picture college life as it is that has ever been gotten together.

The student body has coöperated with us in turning in the material for THE HOWLER on time and this promptness has enabled us to carry on our work more efficiently to a conclusion. We congratulate them on their promptness.

We wish to thank the Faculty for their coöperation and aid which was readily given when sought.

With one word more the Editors will allow you to pass on to the field of Jokes. That word is this:

THE HOWLER IS THE PUBLICATION OF THE STUDENT BODY, AND TO MAKE IT A SUCCESS EVERY STUDENT MUST BACK UP THE EDITORS WITH THEIR ENCOURAGEMENT AND THEIR SUBSCRIPTIONS. THE EDITORS BELIEVE THAT THE ONE SOLUTION OF THE HOWLER PROBLEM FINANCIALLY IS FOR THE STUDENT BODY TO DEMAND A PUBLICATION FEE TO BE PAID THRU THE OFFICE OF THE BURSAR.

We express our thanks to all those who have coöperated with us in compiling and printing THE HOWLER and remain,

Sincerely,

THE EDITORS.

HOWLER

BREWTON: "Do you know Kelley Stiles?"

STAMEY: "No. What is his name?"

BREWTON: "Whose name?"

"Spell chauffeur."

FRESHMAN ELLIOTT: "Chopher."

DR. HUBERT: "Where to, Dr. Pearson?"

DR. PEARSON: "I'm going to church."

DR. HUBERT: "Sweet dreams."

HAMRICK and WHITAKER were coming in late, as usual. The Ford was rattling enough.

HAMRICK: "Look where you're going, Whit. You'll run 'er in a ditch."

WHITAKER, arousing from his nap, "I thought you were driving."

SMITH, looking into his pocket: "I've forgot my watch. Let's see if I'll have time to go back and get it."

FIRST NEWISH: "What does that 'Pro Humanitate' on the arch mean?"

SECOND NEWISH: "Peace to Humans, of course."

DR. GREAVES: "When I was here Dr. Cullum was a newish professor."

DR. VANN: "Did he part his hair then where he parts it now?"

DR. GREAVES: "You used the wrong term. You mean had he parted with his hair then."

HOWLER

T. M. Parker, the inexperienced senior: "I do hate to go to that photographer. I never have had a picture made."

SKY GUPTON: "Is your Ford very expensive?"

SKY CANTRELL: "It costs more to keep it than it did to get it?"

SKY GUPTON: "I wouldn't have anything that costs more to keep than to get."

SKY CANTRELL: "How about your wife?"

Why does Dr. Paschal's hair remind me of heaven?"

"Because there is no parting there."

While they were playing poker some one asked "Runt" if he could play bridge. "Runt": "Yes, do you have any bridge cards?"

DR. POTEAT (on Latin One): "I'll bet five dollars that I ask for something that some of you can't give this morning. Well, in order to save my money, go to the board, Bridges."

"Who beat Trinity in football?" "Wake Forest!"

"When did Wake Forest beat Trinity?" "November the tenth, nineteen hundred and twenty-three!"

"Where was that game played?" "At Winston-Salem, N. C."

"What was that score?" "Sixteen to six!"

Dr. Paschal took that church going cat out of the church the night that Powell preached.

EDD MOORE: "What rare incident occurred on November the fifteenth, nineteen hundred and twenty-three?"

VANN: "Dr. Reid confessed, on Philosophy One, 'I do not know.'"

Suppose Royall Poteat should pull our Sledd across the Gulley and find Nowell Pearson out by the Lake listening to Speas Reid?

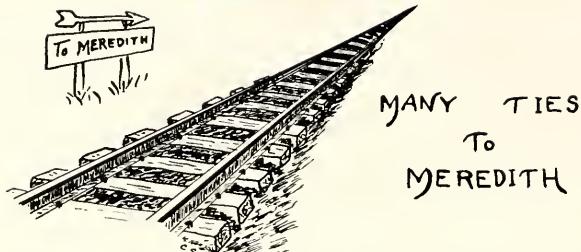

THE METHODIST PARSON: "Well, brother, McMillan, when you were baptized weren't you afraid a minnow would swallow you?"

DR. McMILLAN: "No, no, I wasn't afraid. My Bible teaches that only one Baptist was ever swallowed by a fish, and the Lord made that fish take him out and lay him on the dry ground."

MISS PRIGGOTT: "Your temperature is normal."

NEWISH YOST: "How 'bout my fever?"

HOWLER

Remember that Booe tried to get a date at Meredith with an overcoat check.

DR. SLEDD: "Are you going home today, Mr. Gore?"

GORE: "No sir, Doctoer."

DR. SLEDD: "Well, well, I wonder why you look so honely" (?)

SENIOR MOORE (announcing the speakers): "A brother alumni will now address you."

DR. REID: "It takes brain to fathom that."

CAUDLE: "My ancestors were all people of brains."

DR. REID: "It's too bad you were disinherited, Mr. Caudle."

NEWISH POWELL: "Talking about big shoes, why, I wear tens."

NEWISH HORN: "Man, that's nothing. Hallman's feet are so big he has to put his pants over his head."

DR. McCUTCHEON: "Name a very common tragedy in four acts."

NEWISH LONG: "Cram," "Exam," "Flunk," "Trunk."

PROF. ROUSE: "Who wrote Chaucer's Prologue?"

WOODWARD: "Shakespeare."

"If your cords bother you, remove your ankles so your calves can go down and devour them."

DR. REID: "Locate the alimentary canal."

CAMPAIGN WILLIAMS: "It's is on the south side of the Nile River."

DR. H. M. POTEAT: "Who wrote the song, 'The Fight is on,' and when?"

NEWISH: "Sky Blanton, I think, the day he got married."

PROF. PRICHARD (on Chemistry class): "Name a modern corn cure."

NEWISH POWELL: "There ain't any cure. If you once git the habit, you'll always drink it."

HOWLER

The College Quartette had rendered the song, "Dear Old Wake Forest." Dr. Cullum noticed a middle aged man weeping. He walked over to the man and with a sympathetic touch on his shoulder said, "Are you a Wake Forest man?"

The man, sighing between sobs, replied: "No. I'm a musician."

LAMB: "Where do you get breakfast anyway?"

PRIVETTE, absent mindedly: "At the same place where I board."

Newish Bridges looked the pipe organ over very carefully, and questioned, "Gosh, but don't they have a big radiator in this church?"

If Trinity is going to keep on playing Wake Forest, I think she might as well ask grand-father's blessing just before each game. It goes like this: "Lord, help us to be thankful for what we are about to receive."

SERVICE—QUALITY

This Annual is an example of co-operation with the student body

THE predominating factor in the production of a high grade annual is the complete cooperation of the printing organization with the student board. The annual department of the Edwards & Broughton Printing Co. offers such cooperation from the supervision of art work and engravings to the completed book.

Just a Little Ramble Around Your Yard will probably show you how your house can be set in a bower of beauty, and made an attractive home that will give joy to you and be one of the pointed-out places of your town.

Of course you know that well planted and well kept home grounds are instinctively taken as marks of success and prosperity. If you are the owner of such a place, no matter how small, there will come to you a sense of pride that never comes to one whose grounds are lacking in simple landscape effects.

A house without shrubs and trees about it does not fit into the surrounding landscape—it is bare and uninviting, with little resemblance to a real home. A very small investment in trees and shrubs will change this outward appearance, will add to the pleasure of yourself and family, and noticeably increase the physical value of the property.

The Howard-Hickory Company offers a complete planting service; we make the plans, furnish the trees, shrubs, or vines, plant them and guarantee them to grow. We shall be glad to consult with you about your planting problems.
